THE AGE OF A HORSE.—A man who wanted to know asked a friend how to tell a horse's age. His friend said: "The best way is to ask a horse dealer." The next day the man went to a horse-dealer's place and said: "I want to buy a horse. How old is the animal?" The horse-hunter opened the animal's mouth, gave one glance, and turned on his heel. "I don't want him," said he; "he's 32 years old." He had counted the horse's teeth.

of the Treasury, Lords Londsdale, Melmestun,

Again, Mr. Frederick Peel was, in 1855, political Under-Secretary—first, for the Colonial Department, under the Duke of Newcastle; and next, under that noble Duke, as War Minister, and subsequently, in 1855, under Lord Panmure. During that period Lord John Russell and Lord Palmerston were Lord Secretaries of State.

Palmerston have continuously led in the Commons, assisted by such Cabinet Ministers as Gladstone, Graham, Sidney Herbert, Wood Baines, and C. Newall Lewis. Mr. F. Peel has thus had only to represent and answer questions in his own department, and not for the Queen's Ministers.

Moreover, such a limited acting for and on behalf of one's own office is deemed to be essentially political; that when Lord Derby offered Mr. Lydard to hold the Under-Secretaryship of Education, he was not to be taken seriously.

Foreign Affairs—until the return of Lord Stanley from abroad—Lord John Russell, when consulted, advised Mr. Layard that such a course was constitutionally incompatible even with the declared intention of that member remaining not as a political officer under the Derby Administration. He had held that office for but two months, nominated by Lord Granville, on the avowed principle of a selection from his literary merits and foreign knowledge. Thus the permanent under-Secretary—never tolerated in Parliament—is alone deemed in the mother country to be non-political.

If, therefore, any far-fetched analogies exist between the position of the Inspector of Police, as representative of the Queen's Ministers in New South Wales, and the proceedings in England, some imaginary history must be written. Let the following be supposed.

That the Administrative Reformers' movement had been efficacious, and had ejected Lord Palmerston in the summer of 1855. That an alliterate administration had been formed by Robert Lowe, Lydard, Samuel Laing, and Lindsay the shipowner, with other men of progress. That the whole of the great offices of state were held by commoners, and that they put the great seal in commission, dispensing with the Lord Chancellor or Lord Keeper. That the highly distinguished Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police, Sir Richard Mayne, had been elected Baron Mayne of May Yard, during an adjournment of Parliament, necessary for the re-elections of the members of the Cabinet, who were concentrated in the Commons. That this subordinate functionary of the Executive should assume a position of being the representative in the Peers—of the Queen's Ministry, yet not himself a Minister of the Queen. In fact, two gentlemen at once, like Mr. Cerberus. I should certainly like to be present at the first few minutes of Lord Brougham's explosion, at such an occurrence in a constitutional land!

But quitting this mode of applying reductio ad absurdum, it is a consolation to perceive that Captain Mayne added this confession. "If however, it were urged upon the Government, and it were shown to be necessary, no doubt it would be repudiated by the Government. No Minister would be responsible to the House of Commons."

Of course he had the authority of the Executive to represent the intentions of Her Majesty's Ministry, with the concurrence of the Governor-General.

It remains now for the Legislative Council to assert their right to be treated with the respect due to an integral branch of the Parliament, and it is to be hoped that Mr. Johnson will follow up his question by a substantive motion. The necessity is conclusively evident, as at this moment, in a political sense, the Inspector of Police can only be a tale-bearer between the Legislative Council and the separate members of the Executive; for else if he be admitted to them assembled in such a manner, such an act might be a very grave constitutional misdeemeanor, as ignoring the Governor-General's specific right, formally to the Governor-General a specific right formally to summon the subject to the Executive Council, and omitting the oath prescribed to be taken thereon.

MORETON BAY.
(SEPARATION FROM NEW SOUTH WALES.)

RETURN to an Order of the Honorable the Legislative Assembly, dated 7th August, 1856, for "all Documents received by his Excellency from the Right Honorable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, relative to the Separation of the Northern from the Middle Districts of the Colony of New South Wales, together with the enclosed Correspondence from his Excellency the Governor-General to the Right Honorable the Secretary of State for the Colonies on the same subject."

Memo. — Lord John Russell's Despatch cannot be traced. It was a brief despatch, merely inviting the Governor-General to report upon the expediency of separating Moreton Bay from the remainder of the Colony, and to send him a separate government thereon, as quoted in his Excellency's despatch of 15th October, 1855.

No. 2.
The Governor-General to Lord John Russell.
(Copy.) No. 169. Government House, Sydney,
October 18th, 1855.

Mr Lush, — I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your Lordship's Dispatch, No. 20, dated the 10th of June, 1833, in relation to the petition of the free negroes of the Bay District from New South Wales, and established therein a separate government.

I have been anxious for correspondence with the Colonies, and the proposed change of separation, by which it would appear that the expediency of such a step was first advocated by the inhabitants of the Northern Districts, principally with the view of inducing the Colonies to support a separation, and to that part of the colony. It is true that this was not objected to by a portion of the population, but still it formed the main feature in most of the petitions; and I believe that the large squatters were the persons whose interests were most consulted in the matter. In the latter petitions, the question of the continuance of the separation has been brought forward, and I think that the Government having been too clearly explained, as regards it to allow of any hope that convicts would be be sent to Moten Bay, even were it made a separate colony. But the persons who petitioned are the same persons who petitioned for the separation of the islands of the town of Brisbane and Ipswich. To these the prospect of a large local expenditure is probably the strongest inducement which has caused them to apply for separation. It is not till now, say before your Lordship an outline of the condition of the district, to which it is proposed to give a separate Government, with a legislative committee, a court of justice, a separate judicial district, is taken as the boundary between New South Wales and New Guinea, that the area of the country to the north of that parallel may be then at 206,000 square miles, and the population at 20,000. It is not till now that they are afflicted by the fever, and about 20,000 are yearly more have been claimed, under the pre-emptive right, by squatters.

rent or licensee of £13,608 13s. is paid. The number of these squatters is 420, of whom only 56 have expressed an intention of exercising their pre-emptive right. It would seem, then, by this, that the principal occupants of land in this district of the colony are in the disposition of the Government, the permanent holders of property, and that they are not in any way with the colony. They are, in point of fact, producers of wool on a large scale; but their outlay of capital on the land has been very small indeed, and the improvements made by them are but trifling. Indeed, it is not likely that a man who has no interest in the land would be tempted to expend money upon

THE PEOPLE'S ADVOCATE of the 29th ultimo has taken to itself the name of "Ben Backstay," and has been endeavoring to make our readers under its notice, in which certain and singular misrepresentations were made in reference to the conduct of the Inspector of the Water Police. "Ben Backstay," the author of the document mentioned, accuses the Inspector, and to very measured terms, of allowing the Mos brig to proceed to sea with a carpenter who had deserted from the ship, on board. Had all the complicated assertions of "Ben Backstay" been correct, no very hard or singular charge could have been made against the Inspector; but as we happen to be in a position to show that his assertions and inferences are equally absurd, unjust, and untrue. We are able, in the first place, most positively to say that it as yet through the agency of the Captain of the Aële, and in the remotest degree, that the deserting captives were secured. The arrest took place QUITE in the usual manner, except, perhaps, that it must have been unusual and extraordinary vigilance in the Inspector which induced the Captain of the Aële to present him with a reward of ten pounds for his exertions and success. None of your readers, I should think, will sympathize with a perversion so injudicious as this; and we feel it to be our duty, in justice to the public, to give this explanation of the matter. We are, Sir, your obedient servants, J. PHANIS and CO., Magazine-place.

THE OLD HOUSE IN PARK-STREET.
 To be let.

To the Ladies,
Tune "Love was once a little boy."
Our House was once a pretty cot,
Heigh ho ! heigh ho !
In front, a smiling garden plot,
Heigh ho ! heigh ho !
And in one corner stood a bower
Where Alice smiled, full many an hour
On something, lovelier than a flower.
Fol de riddle, heigh ho bet
Our House was next a humble shed,
Heigh ho ! heigh ho !
Young love with Alice long had fled,

Young men what Heigh ho! heigh ho !!
And rule feet tramp the garden down
And buy men soon reared a town
Of houses that down on it frown.

Fold riddle, heigh ho he !

Our House will soon fall to decay,
Heigh ho! heigh ho !
Its present inmates pass away,
Heigh ho! heigh ho !!
